

Loose change

New boss at Canada Life

Canada Life's Irish operation has a new managing director. Ruairi O'Flynn is taking over from Tom Barry, who will remain as non-executive director but will also pursue separate business, professional and other interests.

O'Flynn, 52, joined Canada Life in 2002. He was previously a senior executive at Bank of Ireland Group. Since joining Canada Life, he has had a number of roles, including managing director of Setanta Asset Management, Canada Life's investment management arm. His appointment is subject to approval by the Financial Regulator.

Bill Acton, president of Canada Life Capital Corporation; Ruairi O'Flynn, incoming managing director; and Tom Barry, outgoing managing director, Canada Life in Ireland